SG1J
PROJECT P, 2 JULY 87

Human figure, probably male, dressed in dark clothes with a patch of white, arm raised and bent; may be holding something up for someone to see or observe. Has an expression on face that indicates some sort of pronounced emotion--either pleasure or anguish.

My first impression on reading the book was Alvin Karp. (This was before I knew he was testifying next week).

That remains my impression.

I envision a side shot - facing at a long table, with microphones, etc. His brow is furrowed. He is not as relaxed - appearing as he has been in the past. <sup>perhaps in the ground.</sup>

There is a white banner across the bottom left corner of the magazine <sup>over</sup>

But appear to be concerned with a surprising statement made by North.
